

>> About MessageSling

Founded in January 2008, MessageSling is a mobile voice messaging company that is re-writing the way people use and interact with voicemail. The company plans to take conventional voicemail to a new level by providing a hands-free mobile messaging service that allows consumers to receive and send voice and dictated text messages using simple voice commands.

MessageSling is the industry's most comprehensive voice messaging communications service providing anywhere, anytime access to voice messaging without downloads or installs required. The service is carrier independent making it easy for anyone, anywhere to access their voicemail in a way that they prefer.

Today's voicemail is cumbersome and not well integrated into the daily workflow of most people. Mobile communications methods have continued to evolve and yet voicemail has not changed in thirty years. MessageSling plans to enable more efficient communication through voice messaging with tools better suited for today's consumer on the go.

The company's founders Scot Junkin and Ryan Angilly, two former college mates, set out to create a full-featured voice messaging service. Since February, Junkin and Angilly have worked hard to develop a modern and convenient solution for accessing voicemail in a way that is complementary to daily work flow without compromising safety while driving. Recognizing a need in the market for a better voice messaging experience to address hands-free messaging and bring voicemail into the daily fold, these founders built MessageSling as the next evolution in voicemail technology.

Headquarters

MessageSling
210 Park Ave., Suite 330
Worcester, MA 01609
(508) 635-9574

Website

www.MessageSling.com

Beta

- Beta v0.1 in April 2008
- Beta v0.2 in May 2008
- Over 5,000 messages served

>> Introducing MessageSling

a voice messaging service that fits your life

Yesterday's Voicemail is Not Conducive for Today's Mobile Consumer

In the 35 years since the first cell phone call, mobile devices and services have radically evolved, but voicemail has not. Traditional voicemail services don't let people customize their experience, a problem for today's consumers who want control.

>> MessageSling Works Anywhere

Check messages with email, phone, and online

MessageSling is the industry's first hands-free messaging service where you can receive and send voice and dictated text messages using simple voice commands. The service makes it simple to check messages via email, by cell phone, or online.

MessageSling's voice-activated service allows you to keep your hands on the wheel while staying on top of your messages. With more and more states enacting cell phone laws which prohibit driving while talking on handheld cell phones, MessageSling provides a safe alternative with hands-free voice messaging.

>> MessageSling Organizes Everything

Store and search unlimited messages, contacts and greetings

MessageSling provides unlimited storage and lets you organize contacts, greetings and messages into groups, making it easier to search and store information outside of your mobile device.

MessageSling makes it easy to import contacts from existing email accounts so that no familiar caller goes unrecognized.

Personalize your voice messaging experience as well as the experience of those contacting you with labels and custom greetings for both individual contacts and groups. For example, you can record a casual greeting for your friends, professional greetings for those work calls and even record greetings in another language for your bilingual callers.

>> MessageSling Saves Time

Read your message transcriptions and share them

MessageSling saves time by making it easier than ever before to receive and respond to messages. Whether you are in a meeting or at a noisy event, your messages are just a few clicks away and are delivered in the format that you choose – audio mp3 files or transcriptions.

MessageSling empowers you with convenience, flexibility and control over when, where, and how you initiate, check, respond, and share your voice communications.

Sign up for a free account today at www.MessageSling.com!